A History of Quality Building

Barton Legacy Builders is a family-owned business co-owned by carpenters Jim and Beth Barton. Jim has worked as a carpenter for over 25 years on a variety of construction projects, primarily focusing on residential construction and remodeling. Beth has 19 years' experience as a carpenter and superintendent in residential, industrial, and commercial sectors. She has received multiple awards for construction project excellence, and for her work helping recruit and retain women into the construction workforce through the non-profit Missouri Women In Trades. Since 2006, the pair has completed a wide variety of home construction projects, from building and remodeling their own homes, to a variety of projects for friends and family. In early 2021, Barton Legacy Builders LLC was officially founded and became a signatory contractor with the St. Louis Carpenters Union.
